

GIVE A TALK! 2026 Vol.4

Theme: Presenting Your Findings

Instructor Bio/Photo: Dr. Brandon L. Kramer is an Associate Professor in the School of Education at Kwansei Gakuin University in Nishinomiya. His research focuses on vocabulary learning, the development of reading fluency, and the measurement of language learning through quantitative testing. Recently, he has been conducting research regarding corpus linguistics. In particular, he has paid special attention to the study vocabulary (both single word units and multi-word units) which students are most likely to encounter throughout their English-content studies.

Target participants (University Teaching Faculty, Staff, and Graduate Students):

Primary focus on supporting women faculty aiming for international conference presentations in English; all faculty members and graduate students, regardless of gender, are warmly encouraged to attend.

Overview: Presentation skills are essential for academic success. "Give a Talk!" consists of workshops dedicated to helping you present your research with clarity, confidence, and impact in English at international conferences. This workshop will focus on presenting academic data and numerical information in English. Because this is such a key component to academic presentations, it will be a wonderful learning opportunity for everyone interested in improving their professional English skills!

Language: English for Academic Purposes

Venue: C-601 (6th floor at the Central building)

This session will be conducted in-person.

Session Date: October 24th, 2026 – Saturday, 2PM to 4PM

What you will learn in this session

Key Learning Outcomes:

- presenting basic statistical information
- explaining charts and graphs
- explaining technical information and data

How to Register: <https://forms.gle/SBUTy1SP2eNEk9zy5>